FAQS about Graz!

Graz with almost 300.000 inhabitants, is the second-largest city in Austria after Vienna and the capital of the federal state of Styria (Steiermark in German) a green and heavily forested area, lovely called the "green heart of Austria".

Graz has a long tradition as a student city: its six universities have more than 44,000 students. Graz's "Old Town" is one of the best-preserved city centres in Central Europe. In 1999, it was added to the UNESCO list of World Cultural Heritage Sites. Graz was also Cultural Capital of Europe 2003.

The city is riverined on the Mur, in the south east of Austria. It is approximately 200 km southwest of Vienna.

The nearest larger city is Maribor in Slovenia which is about 50 km away, which hosts the Winter Universiade 2013.

A short history of the City Graz!

The German name 'Graz' was first used in 1128, and during this time dukes under Babenberg rule made the town into an important commercial center. Later Graz came under the rule of the Habsburgs, and in 1281 gained special privileges from King Rudolph I.

In the 14th century Graz became the city of residence of the Inner Austrian line of the Habsburgs. The royalty lived in the Schloßberg castle and from there they ruled Styria, Carinthia, and parts of today's Italy and Slovenia (Carniola, Gorizia and Gradisca). In the 16th century, the city's design and planning were primarily controlled by Italian Renaissance architects.

Graz lies in Styria, or Steiermark in German. With a strategic location at the head of the open and fertile Mur valley, Graz was often assaulted (unsuccessfully) by the Ottoman Turks in 1529 and 1532. Apart from the Riegersburg, the Schloßberg was the only fortification in the region that never fell to the Ottoman Turks. Graz is home to the region's provincial armory, which is the world's largest historical collection of Baroque weaponry. It has been preserved since 1551, and displays over 30,000 items.

Main Sights

In the last few years some ground breakingly modern new public buildings have been erected in the city. The most famous of these are the Kunsthaus (house of modern art) designed by Peter Cook and Colin Fournier, a museum constructed right next to the river Mur, and the "Murinsel" (island in the Mur), an island made of steel, situated in the river. It was designed by the American architect Vito Acconci and contains a café, an open-air theatre and a playground.

Old Town

The old town was added to the UNESCO World Heritage List in 1999 due to the harmonious co-existence of typical buildings from different epochs and in different architectural styles. Being situated in a cultural borderland between Central Europe, Italy and the Balkan States, Graz absorbed various influences from the neighbouring regions and thus received its exceptional townscape. Today the old town consists of over 1000 buildings, their age ranging from Gothic to Contemporary. The most important sights in the old town are:

- Schloßberg, hill dominating the old town (475 m high), site of demolished fortress, with views over Graz.
- Uhrturm clocktower, symbol of Graz, on the top of Schloßberg.
- The Landhaus, the building where the federal state parliament of Styria resides. It belongs to the most important examples of Renaissance architecture in Austria
- The Landeszeughaus, armoury, the largest of its kind in the world.
- Dom (cathedral), a rare monument of Gothic architecture.
- Rathaus (Town Hall).
- Burg (castle complex), with Gothic double staircase. The Burg remained the residence of the Inner Austrian Court until 1619. Today, it serves as residence of the government of Styria.
- The Glockenspiel, which comes to life with song and rotating dance figures every day at precisely 11:00, 15:00 and 18:00.
